

Central Board Meeting
March 9, 1956

The meeting was called to order by President Jystad. The purpose of the meeting, Jystad explained, was to decide whether or not the Kaimin should be published today. Jystad explained that the many slams and digs at people in the issue are unnecessary. Cogswell said that he had heard about the issue, but had not yet seen it. He said that he was afraid of the humor of the issue, and afraid that the article about Miss Miller might harm her reputation. Forman defended the issue by explaining that the comments were not intended as bitter cracks. He said that it is a college newspaper, and people expect such an issue. He further explained that Miss Miller was consulted about the article, and was willing to have it printed. It was suggested that the article on Miss Miller be left out of the mailing portion of the Kaimin. It was further suggested that the paper not be mailed out. Gaughan said that the question is deeper than was at this time being considered. He said that not sending out the paper was going against student leadership, that a little more of student freedom is being given up if it is not sent, and that this issue is going to "break the ice". It was suggested that the article about Miss Miller be read to her over the phone since she is out of town. It was decided this approach would not be good because if she said no there would be a bad feeling toward Miss Miller by the students. Forman further said that this is a "Goon Edition", and that if other politicians twist the words of a goon paper, it can be thrown right back at them. Donaldson said that the Kaimin doesn't have the good will of the students. Forman said that things are all tied up. This shows, he said, why only one person tries out for the editor position, and five for four associate positions. Gaughan said that the really great colleges allow their graduates to have more than just a degree, they allow their graduates to become individuals. Leuthold moved that the editor, Forman, be given permission to decide if the edition should be printed. Fowler seconded. Passed 7-1. (Lambros.)
